USINDO Jakarta Special Lunch Meeting with the U.S. National War College

Thursday, March 26, 2015

Seribu Rasa Restaurant,
Jakarta

The U.S. Embassy Jakarta's Defense Office asked USINDO to host a special lunch meeting with the delegation from the National War College, National Defense University, Washington D.C., during their visit to Indonesia.

The National War College educates future leaders of the U.S. Armed Forces, State Department, and other civilian agencies for high-level policy, command, and staff responsibilities. Its graduates will exercise a great influence on the formulation of national security and foreign policy.

The National War College delegation was led by Captain James F. Buckley, the Navy Chair and Assistant to Professor of the National War College and consist of 11 faculty members and students from the State Department and Armed Forces.

The meeting covered broad topics such as foreign affairs, politics, business, military, religious freedom, environmental and democracy.

USINDO Jakarta Special Meeting with the Business Executives for National Security (BENS)

Wednesday, November 19 2014

Four Seasons Hotel Jakarta

The U.S. Embassy Jakarta and U.S Pacific Command (PACOM) requested USINDO to host a special meeting with a senior delegation of U.S. business executives from the prominent U.S. NGO Business Executives for National Security (BENS), on their first visit to Indonesia.

BENS is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization of U.S. senior executives who volunteer their time, expertise, and resources to achieve a broader understanding of a variety of U.S. and global national security challenges and find ways to be helpful in addressing them.

The BENS delegation was led by General Norton A. Schwartz, the President and CEO of BENS and Former Chief of Staff of the United States Air Force, and consisted of 11 senior executive business leaders from various private sector industries and four staff members of U.S. PACOM. From USINDO, the meeting was attended by USINDO Members and Friends with various backgrounds such as the private sector, NGOs, and academics.

The two hour meetings covered various issues including the current political status of Indonesia, public perceptions toward the new government of Indonesia, foreign and private investment in Indonesia, Indonesia's competitiveness in the global market, Indonesia's national and local government accountability, religious diversity and pluralism, natural resources, and the effort to mitigate climate change.

Education Programs and Grants

Legislative Partnership Program

After its successful first Legislative Partnership Program on March 1-7, 2014, USINDO is currently preparing the second LPP program that will be held by next year.

The LPP will be implemented over three years by sending four delegations of Indonesian parliamentary staff to Washington, D.C. Each of the four exchanges consists of a customized one-week study program and a U.S. legislative orientation for eight staffers, and a one-month legislative internship for three staffers.

The participants of this program will learn practical knowledge directly from experienced U.S. practitioners about U.S. Congressional committee functioning, the role of professional staff and staff management, the use of support systems such as the Congressional Research Service, legislative drafting, government and non-government legislative oversight, and how the U.S. system engages stakeholders for inclusive policy-making. The Legislative Partnership Program also aims to improve capacity of parliamentary staffers and deepen legislative-to-legislative contacts as part of the U.S. - Indonesia Comprehensive Partnership.

On the first LPP, the participants concentrated on substantive foreign affairs issues between the U.S. and Indonesia. They had discussions with U.S. and Indonesian Executive Branch officials on the status of the U.S. – Indonesia Comprehensive Partnership, and the roles and opportunities for governments, legislatures, and NGOs.

While the first LPP focuses on the Committee on Foreign Affairs, the second LPP intends to focus on the Committee on Finance, National Development Planning, Banking, and Non-Bank Financial Institutions. The other two LPP programs (on Committee on Energy, Environment, Natural Mineral Resources, and Committee on Trade, Industry, Investment, Cooperatives, SMEs, and State-Owned Enterprises) will be implemented in 2017.

The participants of this program are the secretariat staffs or political advisors of DPR who play a strategic role in their current position, between the ages of 25-50, and have more than 5 years government or parliament-related work experience.

We currently work in interactive collaboration with governments on this program.

In Jakarta, we work in collaboration with the DPR secretariat, the staff of the relevant parliamentary Commissions, and the U.S. Embassy, who has a representative on the USINDO selection committee for parliamentary staff.

In Washington, we work in collaboration with the office of House Foreign Affairs Committee Edward Royce, with the House Democracy Partnership, and with the Embassy of Indonesia.

USINDO Legislative Partnership Program participants meeting with Chairman of the U.S. House Foreign Affairs Committee (HFAC), Edward Royce (R-CA)

Chairman of the Subcommittee on Asia and the Pacific, Rep. Steve Chabot (R-OH), speaks with participants about Congressional views on Indonesia

USINDO also believes in the importance of building ties between the two countries' legislatures through increased two-way visits and sharing of experience between Indonesian Members of Parliament and U.S. Members of Congress. Although this is primarily a governmental function, USINDO has an interest in fostering such visits and playing a helpful role where appropriate, in cooperation with governments. This month for example we facilitated an opportunity for members of Indonesia's Parliamentary Commission on Energy and Natural Resources and six members of the U.S. House Energy Subcommittee on Energy to meet and exchange views on how energy issues are handled in each country.

Edward E. Masters Fellowship Program

The Edward E. Masters Program funds the graduate level education and manages the placement of top ranked officials from the Indonesian government at leading universities in the United States. The program has placed 17 Indonesian diplomats at top U.S. graduate programs in international affairs and international law.

Potential Funding Opportunities

Funding continues to be available for this program, but at lower levels due to the withdrawal of some donors owing to economic conditions. Additional sources of shared funding should be sought, as follows:

1. The Review Committee has requested that the Embassy of Indonesia suggest potential companies/donors (both in Indonesia and US) to approach
2. USINDO, through the Joint Council on Higher Education Partnership, will explore the possibility of collaborating with LPDP to raise the program funds
3. USINDO will approach universities accepting KEMLU Fellows and submit requests for full scholarships or tuition credits
4. SAIS is looking into potentially funding one Fellow's tuition.

Fellows Update

Three Fellows graduated from Columbia University in the summer of 2015. Two of the graduating Fellows completed a two-year graduate program at Columbia's School of International and Public Affairs (SIPA) and one graduated from a one-year graduate program at Columbia Law School. Two Fellows are currently in their second year of graduate study at top U.S. programs of international affairs (SIPA Columbia and Georgetown's SFS respectively).

For 2016, the Ed Masters review committee has recently selected three conditional candidates and one alternate candidate. Full acceptance of the top three candidates is conditional on their official GRE and TOEFL tests, their acceptance at top graduate programs in the Fall of 2016, and availability of funds. USINDO is presently determining the extent of funds available for this cycle.

Ministry of Foreign Affairs (KEMLU)

On January 2015, USINDO and KEMLU signed a new Memorandum of Understanding to extend the program for a second four-year cycle until 2017. Under the new MoU, USINDO and KEMLU will continue to share the tuition expenses 50/50. KEMLU Fellows may now choose to pursue graduate study in Public Policy, Environmental Studies, and Economics, in addition to International Affairs and International Law.

The new MOU includes the newly launched Washington enrichment program, which will be held once every semester for all current Fellows to meet and network with prominent U.S. leaders in the government, legislature, think tanks, and NGOs. The program will also include attendance at USINDO's Annual Gala Dinner or other Special Event.

To create a sense of community among Fellows and between Fellows and USINDO, USINDO has also initiated several communication forums: Spring and Fall teleconferences with all current Fellows and social media forums for general discussion among current and past Fellows, as well as with USINDO.

Ministry of National Development Planning (BAPPENAS)

The next call for applications for BAPPENAS officials is for a graduate study program beginning in Fall 2017.

New Opportunities

Ministry of Law and Human Rights

The Loyola University Chicago School of Law has approached USINDO to offer two Indonesian students through the Ed Masters Program, to do a one-year graduate law (LLM) program in the Rule of Law for Development (PROLAW) at Loyola's campus in Rome, Italy. The program prepares effective rule of law advisors from developing countries on both domestic and cross-border legal reform initiatives. The scholarship program has been awarded to two officials from Ministry of Law and Human Rights -- Mrs. Rahayu and Mrs. Rini Maryam.

USINDO has been involved in connecting The Loyola University with Ministry of Law and Human Rights to assist the pre-departure process of the two selected students. USINDO also hosted Mr. William T. Loris, PROLAW's Program Director and Senior Lecturer during his trip to Jakarta in April 2015.

Ministry of Energy and Mineral Resources (ESDM)

USINDO continues to be interested in pursuing extending the Ed Masters Fellows Program to the Ministry of Energy and Mineral Resources (ESDM).

Masters Fellows

Mid-Career Fellow 2013

Ignatius Puguh Priambodo is the first recipient of USINDO's Edward E. Masters Mid-Career Fellowship. He graduated in March 2014 after completing a one-year Global Masters of Arts Program (GMAP) at Tufts University's Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy. Mr. Priambodo has since returned to his post at KEMLU's multilateral unit, where he is involved in the preparation for Indonesia's bid for a seat at the UN Human Rights Council. He will assume his next international assignment in 2015.

Junior Fellows

The Edward E. Masters Fellowship Program has awarded a total of sixteen Indonesian junior diplomats to complete graduate studies in the U.S. Two Fellows are currently studying at top U.S. programs in international affairs. The program is currently selecting new Fellows for classes beginning in the Fall of 2016.

The U.S. – Indonesia Joint Council on Higher Education Partnership

The U.S.-Indonesia Joint Council on Higher Education Partnership (“Joint Council”) is the only non-governmental organization recognized in the U.S. - Indonesia Comprehensive Partnership. The two presidents specifically encouraged the USINDO-created Joint Council on Higher Education Partnership, by name, to “harness the energies of the non-governmental, public, and private sectors in both countries in support of expanding bilateral programs in higher education, including to help build Indonesia’s capacity to provide world class university education.”

With the elevation to a new Strategic Partnership during President Jokowi’s visit, Presidents Jokowi and Obama have, in their October 26 Joint Press release, now further welcomed the theme of non-government input and engagement. They said that:

“recognizing the invaluable contributions of civil society and the private sector to the two democratic countries and their broader relationship, the two Presidents welcome civil society engagement and non-governmental tracks which will also be important to the vitality of the Strategic Partnership.”

In that context, the Joint Education Council’s important contribution to the two governments’ work in education thus far needs to be understood, and the work of the Joint Council needs fresh encouragement as a non-government track of the Strategic Partnership, if it is to be able to continue to attract support and carry on and expand its successful programs during the Strategic Partnership.

What has the Joint Council on Higher Education Partnership accomplished thus far?

1. Established seven new partnerships between U.S. and Indonesian universities, primarily in the science and technology fields.

These substantive partnerships have led to increased student exchanges, joint research, and capacity building at Indonesian universities.

The partnerships we were instrumental in establishing are:

- Texas A&M University & Institut Teknologi Bandung:
Chemical engineering, petroleum engineering, and earth sciences
 - Rutgers University & Banda Islands' Hatta-Syahrir College of Fisheries: Marine science and cultural preservation
 - Northern Arizona University & University of Mataram:
Forestry management
 - University of Missouri & Indonesian Press Association:
Investigative journalism
 - University of Missouri & Institut Pertanian Bogor (IPB):
Plant and crop sciences
 - University of Hawaii Manoa & Universitas Islam Indonesia:
Urban and regional planning
 - University of Illinois & Indonesian Education Endowment Fund:
Increase the number of Indonesian graduate students at Illinois
2. Since the establishment of the Joint Council in 2010-11, it has been instrumental in sending a total of 372 Indonesians to the United States and 172 Americans to Indonesia for study, primarily through the partnerships and their contacts. In the past year alone, 144 Indonesians went to study in the United States and 55 Americans went to Indonesia to study, as a result of programs created by the Joint Council.

Now, with the advent of the LPDP Indonesian scholarship program, the Joint Council also has established a program to assist government-funded Indonesian graduate students to study in the U.S. Its goal is to double the number of LPDP scholars studying in the United States by the end of 2016.

3. The Joint Council through its flexibility is able to identify and resolve constraints to establishing sustainable university partnerships or increasing numbers of students studying in each other's country.

For example, as funds for GRE testing have deterred Indonesian scholarship recipients from applying to U.S. schools, the Joint Council established the Indonesian Application Support Fund:

This fund, established with initial support from seven U.S. universities, provides free GRE and GMAT test vouchers, and will also provide free GRE test preparation courses, to LPDP scholars interested in studying in the U.S. We work with U.S. Embassy – Jakarta on this.

The Joint Council foresees that by removing this financial constraint on applicants, we will be able to double the number of Indonesian scholarship recipients studying in the United States from 44 to 90.

The Joint Council distributed 56 GRE and GMAT test vouchers to LPDP Scholars applying to US universities. To date, the Joint Council has purchased 143 GRE and GMAT vouchers which will be distributed throughout fall 2016.

Contributions to the Fund came from the following seven U.S. universities:

- Harvard University
- University of California San Diego
- University of Colorado Boulder
- University of Illinois Chicago
- University of Illinois Urbana Champaign
- University of Iowa
- University of Washington

Future Partnerships

The Joint Council plans to form the following new partnerships in 2016:

- University of Maryland College Park and the University of Indonesia in public policy.
- University of Georgia and Institut Bogor Pertanian (IPB) in food science
- The U.S.-Indonesia Joint Council and XL Telkom Future Leaders to develop pipelines for enrolling Indonesian undergraduate students at U.S. universities for graduate study.

Bi-National Structure

The U.S.-Indonesia Joint Council benefits from strong support from the U.S. and Indonesian governments as well as the academic community and private sector in both countries. In addition to the leadership detailed below, the Joint Council engages with over 500 U.S. and Indonesian higher education officials on a monthly basis.

The Joint Council is working with the new Ministry of Research, Technology, and Higher Education (RISTEK-DIKTI) to appoint new Indonesian ministry officials on to the Joint Council. The Secretary General of RISTEK-DIKTI has agreed to name a new chair, vice chair, and executive director to the Indonesian side of the Joint Council before the end of the calendar year.

Sumitro Fellows Program

USINDO received a total of 20 applications (6 Americans and 14 Indonesians) for the 2015 Sumitro Fellows Program. The Sumitro Fellows Review Committee met in February 2015 and selected the following as the 2015 Sumitro Fellows.

Herliana (Indonesian)

Herliana is a PhD candidate in the University of Washington, School of Law with a Fulbright-DIKTI scholarship. Her dissertation research focuses on the development of foreign investment law and investment treaty arbitration in Indonesia. Herliana earned a Master's degree in Commercial Law from University of Melbourne, School of Law under Australian Development Scholarship and a Bachelor's degree in Law from Gadjah Mada University, with a Sumitomo Bank scholarship. She is currently a tenured lecturer at Gadjah Mada University, Faculty of Law. Her teaching and research interests include:

civil law, civil procedure, alternative dispute resolution, and arbitration. She has done extensive research in arbitration and alternative dispute resolution in Indonesia, Korea and Japan under various fellowship programs. Herliana is currently an intern in the World Justice Project, Seattle office.

Sebastian Detmann (American)

Sebastian Dettman is a PhD student in the Department of Government at Cornell University. His research interests include citizenship, political participation, and citizen-state relationships in decentralized democracies. His dissertation project examines the role of citizen participation in public goods and infrastructure provision in contexts of socioeconomic inequality. He will spend a year conducting a multi-method research project on this topic in six cities across Indonesia. During the research he will be affiliated with the Centre for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS) in Jakarta as a visiting fellow. Sebastian has also worked as a researcher and consultant in Indonesia focusing on local politics and participation. Sebastian completed his Masters degree in Southeast Asian Studies at the University of Michigan and his BA in International/Intercultural Studies at Pitzer College.

Summer Language Study Program (Summer Studies)

In 2015 USINDO is proposing fresh changes which is intended to generate the program's impact to more American students, enrich their experience, increase the cost effectiveness per student, and leverage the impact of Freeman Foundation funds.

USINDO requested a grant at last year's level of $40,000 from the Foundation and proposed to provide $34,000 of its own, from a bequest dedicated to education and from an earmarked donation from Allene Masters, in honor of Ed Masters' highest priority of sending more Americans to Indonesia. The new proposal was approved by the Foundation and this has enabled us to send more students than in the previous years to participate in the program.

USINDO is also engaging a new highly capable and motivated local organization for administering all non-language activities of the program, under USINDO's oversight. The program now also offers our American students the opportunity for short internships or volunteer work at local organizations in Yogyakarta, to develop their practical skills and familiarity with current issues in Indonesia. Also new this year, USINDO in cooperation with the Indonesian Ministry of Information and Communications, hosted a three-day trip to West Java after the conclusion of the language program in Yogyakarta. Students met local leaders, had discussions with local organizations including the media, and participated in cultural activities.

The 2015 Summer Language Study Program ran from June 1 to August 8, 2015. Nine students were admitted into the program, bringing the total alumni to 214. Gadjah Mada University continued to host this intensive language study program.

The nine participants were selected from a pool of 24 applicants. They came from universities across the United States, with diverse academic background: international relations, anthropology, education, geography, political science, and Arabic studies. Most had no prior knowledge of Indonesian language.

USINDO hosted a two-day orientation in Yogyakarta for the students before they moved in with their host families and started the language classes. As in the previous years, students participated in several cultural workshops and field trips. They also attended several lectures with the following topics: democracy and politics, coffee industry, interfaith dialogue, and gender-based movement in Indonesia.

For the first time ever Summer Studies students participated in a short internship/volunteer work during the program. Students were matched with local organizations and business, ranging from hospitality industry, arts and crafts, tourism agencies, children advocacy, to research institutes.

The Summer Studies Program concluded with a three-day post-program event in Bandung, West Java, organized by USINDO in cooperation with the Ministry of Communication and Information.

Travel Grants

USINDO awards Travel Grants for Indonesians and Americans interested in pursuing academic research and other professional projects in the two countries. In 2014, we awarded eight travel grants to 3 Indonesians and 5 Americans. In 2015, USINDO took a prudent decision to temporarily suspend the Travel Grant Program, owing to overall USINDO funding cuts as a result of world economic conditions. The decision will be reviewed and our intention is to resume the program when funds permit.

The 2014 grant recipients are as follows:

- Umi Rukailah Safari, English Teacher at SMA Negeri Ambulu, Jember, to fund travel to the United States to forge sister-school partnerships between high schools in Oregon, Montana, and Jember (East Java).
- Erica Larson, PhD Student in Anthropology at the Boston University, to fund travel to Indonesia to conduct preliminary fieldwork for an ethnographic study of civic education in Indonesia.
- Sanggul Rouli Manalu, PhD Student in Communication, Rhetoric, and Digital Media at the North Carolina State University, to fund travel to Indonesia to study the development of Internet infrastructure in Indonesia.
- Gregory Thaler, PhD Student in Government Studies at Cornell University, to fund travel to Indonesia to study the politics of environmental management and development in eastern Indonesian Borneo.
- Kian Goh, PhD student in Urban Studies and Planning at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to fund travel to Indonesia to study urban spatial politics of climate change in Jakarta.
- Yeni Rahayu, MA student in Plants Biology at Bogor Agricultural Institute, to travel to the United States to conduct taxonomy study as a Smithsonian Graduate Fellow.
- Benjamin Ruisch, MA student in Social and Political Psychology at Cornell University, to fund travel to Indonesia to study the psychological consequences of national symbols in contemporary Indonesia.
- Christopher Laugen, MA student in Population and Public Health at the University of British Columbia, to fund travel to Indonesia to study organizational readiness in emergency maternal and infant services in Indonesia.

The American Council of Young Political Leaders (ACYPL) – USINDO American Delegates to Indonesia

As in-country partner program of ACYPL, USINDO are hosting seven young American political and policy leaders from August 20-24, 2015 in Jakarta and Bandung. This program aims to deepen the delegation's knowledge and understanding on politics, economy, education, and U.S.-Indonesia bilateral relations. The participants are:

1. Ms. Valerie Dowling

Besides meeting Indonesian politicians and leaders, the participants also had the chance to visit Istiqlal Mosque (the biggest Mosque in Indonesia and Southeast Asia), Cathedral Church and historical place such as Asian African Museum, as part of cultural activities.

ACYPL – YSEALI Professional Fellows Program Fall 2015 and Spring 2016

USINDO in cooperation with the American Council of Young Political Leaders (ACYPL) and U.S. Embassy Jakarta announced the development of ACYPL – YSEALI Professional Fellows Program Fall 2015 and Spring 2016. The Young Southeast Asian Leaders Initiative (YSEALI) is President Obama's signature program to strengthen leadership development and networking in ASEAN, deepen engagement with young leaders on key regional and global challenges, and strengthen people-to-people ties between the United States and young Southeast Asian leaders. The Professional Fellows Program (PFP) focused on legislative process and governance for young political and policy leaders from Indonesia, Malaysia, Myanmar, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, Vietnam, and the United States.

Selected participants will attend orientation in Washington DC and participate in a four-week intensive fellowships in local office with day-to-day mentoring and guidance from a local leader and/or an ACYPL alumnus with the goal of strengthening their understanding of American governance, politics, and the legislative process. At the conclusion of the program, all participants will go to Washington DC for a 3-day Professional Fellows Congress where they will share their experiences with other international fellows from around the world.

The 2015 Fall PFP will be held from October 3 – November 13, 2015. The delegates have been selected by a panel consist of representative of USINDO, ACYPL, and US Embassy. The selected applicants are:

1. Ms. Siska Haryani
Foreign Relations Expertise to the Chairman of People's Consultative Assembly of the Republic of Indonesia
2. Ms. Jensi Sartin
